“ Rest in Peace Eddie! You were always a good boy! A little stinker that had the cutest smile & warming big brown eyes. I know you have found peace in Heaven. No one can ever take your place in the lives of those that loved you but they have Zoey, your adorable little girl to help them through this difficult time. Through her a piece of you will live on forever!

Peg, my heart breaks for you & Jessica. I know no words can comfort you at this time. Please know that we love you & will always be there for you!

“ I only met ed one time. It was the day after a big snowstorm and I was looking for a place to park. As I got to the end of the street my car got stuck in snow. I spent no more than 30 seconds pressing the gas trying to get unstuck before he started walking across the street from the bus stop he was waiting at waving at me. Without hesitation he got behind my car and started pushing. I gave him a ride to the boulevard from there and we talked for a little bit realizing it was small world.

I only met him and talked to him that one time, but will always remember that a stranger who spent over an hour waiting for a bus in the cold immediately jumped into action and got wet and snow thrown on himself from the back of my car just because he saw somebody stuck.

My condolences to his family and may ed rest in peace.

“ I've known Eddie for 4 years, over those years I've got to know him pretty well.
He would work with me more than occasionally and was learning a trade in the air conditioning and heating field.
And I might add he was doing very well and was learning a lot it was a real pleasure to have him around
