“ It's hard to accept reality, you were such a strong woman, probably the strongest I've ever known. I was blessed to have not only known you, but to be a part of your family. You cared about me at times when I didn't care about myself, you made me feel accepted and showed me love no matter what we went through. When you were with us I could only see you as a tough, straight forward, no nonsense person, but now that you're gone I close my eyes and see the sweeter side of you and it hurts to see such a wonderful person leave us. You have touched so many lives of so many people that never would've gotten a shot otherwise. I will be forever grateful for your generous heart and you will always be the mother that I never had, thank you for being you. I love you.

“ I'm bless to have known you, if it wasn't for you I wouldn't be the man I am today. You gave me a job that alot ppl thought I would not be able to succeed. You giving me that opportunity and it change my life for the better and I am truly thankful for that opportunity. Yet are last conversation wasn't so nice because I smelled like "POT" as you call it, I never thought I would get that call you went to the Lord. As hard as it was for me to understand how it could happen to you as you were such a strong woman, also made me understand that you are not in any anymore pain. Yes you beat CANCER but no one can beat the calling for the HEAVENLY FATHER. I would like you to know I love you and you will never be forgotten. Rest in Paradise Sheri...
